at Devil's Thumb Ranch

the centerpieces

Soft-colored garden arrangements included rosemary and artichokes and sat atop wrought iron stands.

THE BRIDE Kera Drake, 28; is a graphic designer for Particle Measuring Systems and has her own graphic design company called Double Duck Design

THE GROOM Jeff Gaston, 28; is an attorney for a Denver law firm

HOW THEY MET Attended the same college and started dating sophomore year

THEIR ENGAGEMENT PERIOD 11 months

the reception décor

the ceremony décor

Jars of blooms mimicking the bridal bouquet were hung on shepherd's hooks by the pews.

the place settings

For a cozy, rustic feel, the couple borrowed the reception china from their neighbors and relatives.

HONEYMOON Costa Rica

the formalwear

A green and brown paisley tie added light contrast to the groom's custom-made, tan seersucker suit.

the desserts

Guests were treated to a "down-home dessert bar," made up of snacks like Twinkies and Moon Pies.

the table numbers

Vintage address numbers were used to make rustic, mismatched table numbers.
